On the Cover

The Vicuña which lives at 15,000 feet on the Andean plains in Peru is a member of the Camelidae family and is often referred to as “The Princess of the Andes.” During Inca rule, the silky fleece obtained from the Vicuña was known as “The Fiber of Gods” because only members of the royal family could own it.

This exceptional animal was unfortunately brought to the brink of extinction some forty years ago due to indiscriminate hunting. By the early 1960’s, the Vicuña population, which had once numbered over one million, had been reduced to only about 5000 and was facing extinction. At that time, the Vicuña became a protected species and no hunting or shearing was permitted by the Peruvian government.

A consortium led by the Italian Textile Conglomerate Loro Piana worked closely with the Peruvian government for the next thirty years to save the species.

These efforts were successful and today the Vicuña population numbers approximately 200,000. In 1994, the Peruvian government honored Loro Piana for its efforts by allowing the consortium leading this effort, to begin legal shearing of these rare Vicuña.

NETJETS[®] LIFESTYLESSM PORTFOLIO

Introduction

In 2003, we began the NetJets LifestylesSM initiative to introduce NetJets[®] Owners to special products and privileges from some of the world's finest companies. Our idea was to help make your life a little easier and more enjoyable, whether through superior amenities on the aircraft, access to unique events, or distinctive products and services you can enjoy at home or at a destination. This holiday season, as an extension of this initiative, we have put together a Portfolio of some special items, many of which are one-of-a-kind, uniquely designed, or being made available exclusively to NetJets Owners.

Each company participating in the NetJets Lifestyles Portfolio is doing so at the invitation of NetJets, and each is contributing a participation fee and a small commission on every purchase. These fees cover the design and production costs of the Portfolio. NetJets has not derived any benefit in kind – be it financial, business, marketing, or otherwise – from any of the participants and will not make any profit. If the combination of fees and commissions generates a surplus, all excess funds will be donated to NetJets-designated charities. In addition, there are two special items from two well known NetJets Owners which serve to raise money for their special children's charities.

The Portfolio has been designed entirely for you, and participation is solely at your discretion. We have attempted to present an eclectic group of unusual and unique items with interesting and informative descriptions on the product and the company heritage. We hope you will enjoy reading about them. Each participating company has provided a special contact name, telephone number, and email address to answer any questions you may have. None of these companies have been given access to your personal information and none will have the ability to contact you directly. Consistent with our Lifestyles program, any purchases you choose to make will establish a separate and distinct relationship between you and the company selling the product. Given that some of these items are unique, part of a limited edition, or one-of-a-kind and have been specially reserved for NetJets Owners, we ask you to provide your NetJets account number at the time of purchase.

We sincerely hope you enjoy the NetJets Lifestyles Portfolio and wish you and your family a wonderful holiday season.

Fauchon

Fauchon, the legendary French gourmet emporium in Paris, was established by Auguste Fauchon, a grocer from Normandie who began with a food cart on the Place de la Madeleine. A year later, in 1886, he opened his own fine foods store specializing in French products. A few years later, Fauchon set up his confectioner's shop and bakery, producing legendary cakes and desserts such as the famous Directoire (rum plum-cake) and Saint-Honoré. It was here that his chefs invented the Megève, named for the famous ski resort and still sold in Fauchon stores today. In 1898, the opening of Fauchon's Grand Salon de Thé was a memorable event and with it came the introduction of the Five O'Clock Tea, known as the French Tea – a Parisian institution that shocked the English. Bernardaud

Bernardaud, founded in 1863, is the only remaining family-owned company in Limoges still practicing the traditional art of hand-made French porcelain. Now led by Michel Bernardaud of the fifth generation, the company has maintained a tradition of visionary style and a passion for the finest porcelain. For over 140 years, Bernardaud porcelain has been found on the finest tables throughout the world serving royalty and heads of state and is found in many of the world's finest restaurants such as Le Cirque, Jean-Georges, and Daniel. Bernardaud continues to feature the artistry of world-renowned designers such as Olivier Gagnère, Jacques Garcia, and Hervé van der Straeten.

Personalized Cobalt and Gold Incrustation Service

The traditional art of incrustation is the most complex decoration technique for Limoges porcelain. Incrustation involves the application and fusing of cobalt and gold into the porcelain thus creating an extraordinary and timeless beauty. It is the most difficult of all the decorative operations and requires the most savoir-faire and advanced techniques. Each piece is carefully crafted by hand with the production of a complete set requiring hundreds of hours of detailed work.

The most renowned and beautiful pattern of gold and cobalt incrustation is called Beaugency. Its gold foliage and the lily motif on a cobalt blue background evokes the golden century of the Loire Valley and its magnificent chateaux. As a special service for NetJets Owners, Bernardaud is pleased to offer the service of personalizing this exquisite set with your monogram, just as they have done for many royal families.

The complete service is comprised of 81 pieces: twelve five-piece place settings, twelve dessert plates, one coffee pot, one creamer, one sugar bowl, one 11" oval platter, one 13" oval platter, one gravy boat, one open vegetable dish, one salad bowl, and one tart platter.

In order to fully appreciate the quality and craftsmanship, Michel Bernardaud and his team of artisans are happy to invite you to visit the Bernardaud Manufacture and Museum in Limoges, France. You will receive a personal tour of the factory and museum and Michel Bernardaud will be pleased to invite you and a guest for dinner. The visit to be arranged at a mutually convenient time.

Grey Flannel Auctions

Grey Flannel Auctions of Great Neck, NY is the leading seller and authenticator of game used uniforms and equipment. It is the official authenticator for the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, MA and has handled memorabilia from the estates of such sports notables as “Pistol Pete” Maravich, Elston Howard, and Otto Graham. Its next auction in November 2004, the Fall Classic 2004, will feature the greatest collection of game worn jerseys ever offered in a single event.

Babe Ruth’s Authentic Original 1930 Uniform

Once in a lifetime, an opportunity arises not only to own but to save from possible extinction the “Holy Grail” of sports memorabilia. Grey Flannel Auctions proudly offers, exclusively to NetJets Owners, George Herman “Babe” Ruth’s 1930 New York Yankees full grey flannel road uniform. The uniform has resided in the Babe Ruth Museum in Baltimore, MD for the past five years. In the past, many of the uniforms of baseball’s greatest stars, including Ruth’s 1925 Yankees home pinstripe and Jackie Robinson’s 1947 Brooklyn Dodgers rookie uniform, have been purchased at auction by the trading card companies and cut into small pieces for insertion in trading card packs which sell for premium prices.

This uniform is one of the first Ruth ever wore in which his team name and famous number 3 appear. The number 3 was given to Babe because it represented his position in the Yankees “murderer’s row” batting order. The shirt has the name “NEW YORK” stitched across the chest and the number “3” sewn on the back in navy blue felt. Stitched inside the collar of the shirt in red is the inscription “Ruth G.H.” and the waistband of the trousers has the name “Babe Ruth” stitched in red. The pants also feature drawstring holes so the portly Babe could tightly draw in his waist. There will never be another Babe Ruth or another Babe Ruth full Yankee uniform for sale. This is the finest piece of sports history in existence.

Loro Piana

Ever since 1812, Loro Piana, a six generation privately owned family business, has focused on the production of fabrics made from the most precious fibers in the world. Loro Piana has embarked on a 40 year quest to offer one of the rarest and finest of all fibers – Vicuña. The ultimate luxury fiber, Vicuña is much more precious than cashmere and is considered one of the world's finest natural fibers. The silky fleece obtained from the Vicuña, an animal which lives at 15,000 feet on the Andean plains in Peru and is a member of the Camelidae family, is known as “the princess of the Andes.” During Inca rule, it was known as “the fiber of Gods” because only members of the royal family could own it.

Mirabella Yachts

In 1991, Joe and Luciana Vittoria launched what was to be, for several years, one of the largest sloops in the world – a 40 meter/131 foot beauty designed by Bruce Farr which they christened Mirabella. A few years later, a 41 meter/135 foot sister yacht, Mirabella III, was built. The eventual addition of a Grumman Amphibious aircraft formed a unique and magnificent group available for charter and serving the most discerning clientele in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean. In 1997, Joe had a vision and dream to create an even larger sailing yacht. After four years of development and three years of construction, Mirabella V was launched earlier this summer as the largest single masted sailing yacht in the world.

Mirabella V

At 247 feet (75 meters), Mirabella V, designed by Ron Holland, noted designer of large sailing yachts, is the world's largest single masted sailing yacht by a significant margin. It is the biggest composite ship ever built and, with a mast 290 feet high and 36,000 square feet of sail, she is truly an engineering marvel. Serviced by a multinational, hand picked crew of 13, Mirabella V features a full beam main suite with separate dressing areas and bathrooms. In addition, six beautifully appointed staterooms are available which can accommodate up to twelve guests. Each stateroom has large windows, full size en-suite bathrooms, satellite TV, DVD, and complete audio systems. Dining is available on the skydeck, the covered cockpit, or, more formally, in the main dining room which is capable of seating any number of guests from 12 to 20. After dinner, view a film under the stars on her large projection screen complete with full surround sound wireless headphones. A 20 person Jacuzzi and a dip pool are located on the foredeck. There is also a gym and sauna. In addition to her 29 foot Hinckley tender, her 'toys' include snorkeling, scuba diving, and water skiing equipment, four Laser dinghies, personal watercraft, kayaks, and remote control models of Mirabella V. As Joe Vittoria says, "To be able to move through the water in comfort at motor yacht speed without the noise and vibration of engines is a unique and glorious experience."

Price: Weekly Charters include yacht, crew, and insurance – all other expenses extra.

Mirabella: $65,000 – 10 guests, 7 crew

Mirabella III: $70,000 – 10 guests, 7 crew

Mirabella V: $250,000 – 12 guests, 13 crew

Aurora Gems

Aurora Gems has specialized in natural colored diamonds for the past 20 years and supplies ultra rare natural colored diamonds to many of the world's most well known jewelers. The Aurora Collection of 260 different natural fancy colored diamonds has been on permanent display in the American Museum of Natural History in New York since 1989. Aurora Gems' founder and curator of the collection, Alan Bronstein, is recognized as a world class expert on natural colored diamonds. His book, Forever Brilliant, is a definitive source used by collectors, dealers, and retailers throughout the world.

The rarity and appreciation value of natural colored diamonds has become increasingly apparent on the global market. Recent auctions in New York, Geneva, and Hong Kong have shown that the rarest and highest quality white diamonds will command prices as high as $70,000 per carat. In contrast, the rarest natural colored diamonds can command prices in excess of $1 million per carat. The most exclusive stones rarely, if ever, enter the public market. Instead they are discreetly offered to the finest jewelers and collectors. Aurora occasionally sources fancy colored diamonds directly for discerning clients and is pleased to offer this same service to NetJets Owners upon request. In order to learn more about natural colored diamonds, Mr. Bronstein has offered to provide a copy of his book, Forever Brilliant, to NetJets Owners upon request.

Rare Chameleon Color Change Diamond

One of the rarest types of natural colored diamonds is a chameleon diamond, which actually changes color. A chameleon diamond will turn yellow when left in darkness or slightly heated. Once exposed to light or cooled to room temperature, it changes to a deep olive-green color. Chameleon diamonds are extremely rare. Large chameleon diamonds over four carats are exceedingly rare. The last significant known Gray-Yellowish-Green chameleon diamond to be sold at auction was a 4.41 carat gem which was sold by Christie's in Hong Kong in 2001 for $242,550. Aurora has in its current collection a brilliant pear shaped 6.15 carat Gray-Yellowish-Green chameleon diamond. This one-of-a-kind, exceptional stone is offered exclusively to NetJets Owners.

Steinway & Sons

Steinway & Sons was founded in 1853 by German immigrant Henry Engelhard Steinway in a Manhattan loft on Varick Street. Henry was a master cabinetmaker who built his first piano in the kitchen of his Seesen, Germany, home. By the time Henry established Steinway & Sons, he had built 482 pianos. The first piano produced by the company, number 483, was sold to a New York family for $500. Over the next forty years, Henry and his five sons developed the modern piano. The company gained international recognition in 1867 at the Paris Exhibition when it was awarded the prestigious Grand Gold Medal of Honor for excellence in manufacturing and engineering. It was the first time an American company had received this award. Steinway pianos quickly became the piano of choice for many members of royal families and won the respect and admiration of the world's great pianists. Today, Steinway & Sons crafts approximately 5000 pianos a year worldwide. More than 1300 prominent concert artists and ensembles across the world bear the title Steinway Artist. No artist or ensemble is a paid endorser of the piano. Each Steinway Artist owns a Steinway and has chosen to perform on the Steinway piano. In North America, artists may select a Steinway for concert performances from the company's unique "piano bank," an inventory of more than 300 pianos valued at over $15 million.

Steuben Glass Art-Case

This decorative masterpiece of 6 feet 10 inches celebrates a momentous year in the history of two world-renowned American companies: the 150th Anniversary of Steinway & Sons and the 100th Anniversary of Steuben. Reflecting a shared commitment to craftsmanship and innovation, this exquisite instrument combines the finest in both piano and glass making artistry. The most distinctive design details of Steuben Glass include brilliant, 100% clear crystal in the legs, top stick, music desk, and bench, as well as an elegant Aubergine colored lacquer finish. Other parts feature mirror backing to enhance the piano's beautiful reflective qualities. Since 1903, Steuben has been the preeminent maker of the world's most exquisite glass designs. Founded by English glassmaker Frederick Carder and acquired by Corning Glass Works in 1918, the company soon revolutionized the art glass industry with the introduction of clear crystal. Today, this unique material is still unparalleled for its brilliance, surface finish and clarity helping to make this Steinway a truly unique and special piano.

Audemars Piguet

Since 1875, in the village of Le Brassus at the heart of the Vallée de Joux in the Swiss Jura region, Audemars Piguet has been creating and marketing under its own name a range of Haute Horlogerie watches. The company is the world's oldest manufacture still in the hands of the founding families, ensuring the continuity of a legacy based on three fundamental values: tradition, excellence, and innovation. While the dynamism and daring of Audemars Piguet's horological creativity have always been expressed through exceptional watches, they are also enshrined in one-of-a-kind jewelry models.

Haute Joaillerie Rubies and Diamonds

Each year Audemars Piguet creates a few one-of-a-kind pieces. Only two such Haute Joaillerie sets were manufactured this year, one of which is shown here. At the heart of a poetic interwoven pattern of diamonds dotted with rubies lies the dial of an infinitely delicate watch. Around a perfect diamond-pavé square adorned with four rubies are slender diamond-pavé stems ending in exceptionally limpid teardrop-shaped Burmese rubies forming an exquisite bracelet resembling an armful of flowers. This exceptional jewelry watch is accompanied by earrings which mirror the precious web intertwined around two teardrop-shaped rubies and a ring with a bouquet of diamonds and a magnificent cushion-shaped ruby.

The bracelet watch is made of 18-karat white gold and has 2,102 brilliant-cut diamonds (9.93 carats), 47 navette-cut diamonds (20.61 carats), 37 teardrop-shaped rubies (38.15 carats), and four ruby hour-markers. The earrings, made of 18-karat white gold, are set with 445 brilliant-cut diamonds (1.81 carats), 6 navette-cut diamonds (2.61 carats), and 4 teardrop-shaped rubies (4.92 carats). The ring is 18-karat white gold with 182 brilliant-cut diamonds (0.87 carats) and 3 navette-cut diamonds (1.10 carats) surrounding a cushion-shaped ruby (3.05 carats).

These pieces cannot be replicated as their exceptional design stems from the uniqueness of the set of stones. In case this set has been sold at the time of your call, we will be pleased to invite you to an exclusive preview of other one-of-a-kind creations or customize an exceptional set for you.

Petrossian

At the beginning of the 19th century, Lazare Mailoff was a sturgeon fisherman in the Caspian Sea. At that time, only the sturgeon's skin was sought after for use as leather. The fishermen kept the eggs for their personal consumption and added salt to preserve them. Lazare Mailoff noticed that these sturgeon eggs were a real delicacy, and he began to work on preservation and finishing techniques – thus caviar was born. He passed on his knowledge to his son Elie. In 1920, Mouchehgh and Melkoum Petrossian, Armenians from the Caucase region, fled the Russian revolution and arrived in France. A chance encounter between Mouchehgh and Elie's daughter eventually led to their marriage. The couple settled in Paris and the two Petrossian brothers soon began to import caviar from Russia and sell it under the Petrossian name. Much has changed in the world since 1920, but one constant remains: the quality of Petrossian Caviar. Now, as in 1920, members of the Petrossian family personally choose, on site, the very best of the fresh, high quality caviar produced in the Caspian Sea during each catch, overseeing its processing and aging to ensure the nurturing of its distinctive subtleties. To taste Petrossian's Persicus, Stellatus, Beluga, Ossetra, and Sevruga is to experience the same joy and excitement as their very first customers, the exiled Russian Aristocracy.

Imperial Special Reserve Persicus Caviar

Over the past century, Petrossian has perfected the skills required to turn superior caviar into something truly sublime. Such is the case with the extraordinary Imperial Special Reserve Persicus. At this year's Iranian harvest, Petrossian came across an excellent grade of caviar from the Persian Sturgeon. Through careful selection, aging, and processing, they have created a caviar that rivals – and some say surpasses – the very best Russian Beluga. Quantities of this extraordinary caviar are very limited, connoisseurs are encouraged to place orders early.

Extremely rare, available for the first time – and let us hope not the last – exclusively from Petrossian. This Iranian caviar is noted for its unique color and rich, smooth yet complex flavor that is simply in a class by itself.

QUALIA from Sony Cierge

Born to pursue the highest expression of both art and technology, QUALIA™ takes its name from the neuroscience term for the emotional quality of sensory experiences, describing the “what it’s like” aspect. What is it like to smell a rose? What is it like to hear the ocean? QUALIA is dedicated to creating products that take such experiences to entirely new levels.

Sony engineers were given a simple charge: to quite literally follow their dreams. If you could create a camera – any camera, employing any design, any technologies, using any materials, armed with all the time and resources you deem necessary – what would that camera be like? It would be much like QUALIA 016.

QUALIA 016

This extraordinary digital still camera was conceived of as an instrument that would capture not just images, but rather impressions, observations, points of view, feelings. The result of recent advances in instrument packaging technology and high-density memory, QUALIA 016 weighs two ounces, measures less than three inches in length and employs an extraordinarily compact, high-quality AF lens system, as well as a performance-driven CCD. The camera has been designed so that it can be with you unnoticed and, when the spirit moves you, instantly accessible.

QUALIA 016 is remarkable in and of itself, but it comes with a comprehensive set of accessories, which extend the camera’s wide range of capabilities. Included are remote control and timed operations as well as both wide-angle and telephoto lenses. The handsome, briefcase style carrying case, with forged-zinc detailing, provides an elegant, convenient, and safe home for the entire system.

Skip Barber Racing School

John “Skip” Barber, one of the few Americans to ever contest Formula One, started racing in 1958 while studying at Harvard University. In the mid-1960s, he won three SCCA National Championships in a row. Later, he went on to win consecutive Formula Ford National Championships (1969 and 1970), a record tied only recently. When his career ended, Barber's racing energy was channeled towards developing an affordable racing school. In 1975, with two borrowed Lola Formula Fords and four students, Barber started the Skip Barber Racing School. Skip Barber alumni are a virtual Who's Who of American and international racing and include members of legendary driving families such as the Andrettis, Unsers, and Pettys. World renowned drivers such as Michael Andretti, Helio Castronoves, Jeff Gordon, and Juan Pablo Montoya are all alumni of Skip Barber. Today the Skip Barber Racing School is the world leader in automotive education and entertainment, operating at more than 20 race tracks across the United States and Canada.

Skip Barber – “Accelerated Experience”

The Skip Barber Racing School “Accelerated Experience” – developed exclusively for NetJets Owners – consists of a four program package designed to give you a comprehensive driving and racing learning experience. Master the fundamentals of racing in classroom and driving sessions using a potent 2.0 liter Formula Dodge racecar. Programs are offered at legendary tracks such as Lime Rock Park in Lakeville, CT; Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca in Monterey, CA; Daytona International Speedway in Daytona, FL; Sebring International Raceway in Sebring, FL; and Road America in Elkhart Lake, WI. The four programs consist of a three day racing school, an advanced two day racing school, a car control clinic, and a lapping session. With this package, you may choose to do these programs at any of the five locations listed (based on program schedules). We encourage you to experience as many of these legendary tracks as you can, but you are free to choose just one or any combination of the tracks to complete your four programs. The package includes your own personalized racing suit and racing gloves (yours to keep). The schools are structured to maximize fun and boost your speed and confidence behind the wheel.
